Boston is stifling again to-day under continued hot and sticky weather.

The temperature is bad enough—84 degrees at 1 p. m. But the humidity is worse. It is 80 per cent., which is far above the normal mark.

From a temperature of 71 degrees at midnight (official record), the mercury climbed to 77 degrees by 9 a. m. to 83 degrees at noon and 84 degrees at 1 o'clock. At that time the mercury was still climbing.

As the hot wave continues the list of heat prostrations lengthens, the long strain gradually breaking down the overworked physique. Physicians, nurses and hospitals were prepared for more cases to-day.

Frances Hennessey, sixty-three years old, of No. 243 Chancellor street, East Boston, was found in an unconscious condition in the yard of the Otis School, Marion street, this afternoon. She had been overcome by the heat, and was attended by Dr. McDevitt. Later she was taken to the Relief Hospital, where her condition is said to be serious.

EXPLOSION KILLS 2, INJURES 20

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 3.—Two persons were killed and ten others injured by an explosion on the oil tank steamer Shenango shortly before noon. Twenty workemen were below decks in the steamship, which was on drydock of Cramps shipyard, when the explosion in the lower afterhold of the vessel occurred. Two bodies terribly burned were lifted out later. The dead were Herbert Page and Walter Tyson. Other laborers, overalls blazing, ran the gauntlet of fire and fell in agony on reaching the outer air. Some will die.

Spontaneous combustion of petroleum accumulations is blamed for the accident.

HARTWELL ACQUITTED AS GAMBLER

William Hartwell, of No. 537 Massachusetts avenue, arrested in the down-town hotel district Tuesday on a charge of registering and being custodian of a one-dollar bet on a horse race at Sheepshead Bay the day before, was discharged by Chief Justice Bolster of Boston Municipal Court at a hearing in the judge's lobby this afternoon. The Watch and Ward Society charged that Hartwell registered a bet or that he was custodian of it, or did it for hire.

Detective Al White of the Watch and Ward Society testified that he gave Hartwell one dollar to place on Renault in the Sheepshead entries, that Hartwell walked away, came back and handed him a slip of paper marked "Renault, $1, A. W."

SUIT BROUGHT OVER THE OLD SOUTH CHURCH

The Old South Association to-day filed a petition in the Superior Court against E. D. Codman and Charles B. Sturgis of the Old South Building Trust, seeking to have them restrained from paying dividends until a contract specification with the plaintiff is fulfilled.

The Old South Association owns the church and land at the corner of Milk and Washington streets. The building trust owns the Old South building, which surrounds the church on two sides. In 1902 the trust made a contract with the association for an easement of $6,000 a year. The association reserved the right to cancel the contract if the light or air was destroyed.

SIX BURNED ALIVE AS FLAMES SWEEP DEPARTMENT STORE

Horror at Cleveland, Ohio, When Fire Breaks Out in Kreges Co. Store—Others Missng Believed Dead.

CLEVELAND, O., July 3.—Six persons are known to have perished in a fire which broke out at noon to-day in the Five and Ten Cent store of the Kreges Company in the Public square.

It is believed that others perished, and that their bodies are in the hot, smoking ruins.

The fire broke out at the very worst hour in the day, when the store was thronged with purchasers.

A panic followed the wild cries of "Fire! Fire!" and a score of girl employes of the store leaped from the second story windows before the firemen could spread the nets. All of those who leaped for their lives were hurt, many of them seriously.

NO CHANCE FOR LIFE.

If any of the injured were buried in the ruins or caught in the tumbling framework of the store they are dead, for nothing could live in the blinding heat of that fiery caldron.

Volunteer relief workers are now engaged in assisting the firemen and policemen in hunting through the debris.

When the fire broke out the alarm was sounded at once, but the women and girl employes, throwing reason to the winds fought their way down stairs and out through the doors to the street.

Throw Themselves From Windows.

When others saw that the stairways were filled, they rushed to the second-story windows and flung themselves out. A great crowd of horrified spectators stood spellbound, as girl after girl and one woman and another plunged through the windows and giddily turned over and over in space and fell on the cruel pavements.

A dense and constantly increasing throng of people rushed to the scene, and the city police department called for its reserves and rushed them to the place to keep the crowds out of harm's way.

After the first wild excitement was over, it was not known for a time that any life had been lost. Then when the fire had been partially checked a fireman, exploring the debris, dug out the charred remains of a woman clerk.

SIX BODIES FOUND.

Then, risking their lives and plunging into the fearful heat of the burning wreckage, the firemen delved for other bodies. Then another and another charred and shapeless trunk was hauled from the burning wreckage until six, in all had been found.

These were sent in police wagons to the city morgue and still the ghastly work was rushed.

Of the bodies found, there those of girls and young women, employed in the store and one body was thought of a small boy who had been employed as a messenger.

Many young women were employed as clerks in the building and when the fire broke out they were panic stricken. A heavy pall of smoke filled the building and those in the interior of the building lost their way while hunting for doors and windows and were stifled by the intense heat.

It is thought that every person who perished was either overcome by the fumes or fainted.

While it is not known definitely the firemen believe that there are other bodies in the ruins and the search is going on with haste. Scores of men and women relatives of the young women and boys employed in the store are frantic with grief and are crowding about the cases enclosing the charred remains in the morgue.

SEARCH RUINS FOR VICTIMS.

Despite the extra police reserves which were called out, it is all they can do to hold back the crowd, intent upon clambering upon the ruins and clawing away the twisted beams and stanchion stations which the blaze left in its trail.

None of the bodies of the women taken from the ruins have been identified as yet. The body of the boy was identified as that of James Parker.

The boy, at the time the fire broke out, was in the store with his mother, who escaped uninjured.

AMERICAN LEAGUE BASEBALL GROUNDS, Philadelphia, July 3.—The Red Sox came out to the grounds this afternoon in the face of threatening weather resolved to make amends for yesterday's defeat in case rain did no interfere with the battle. Deacon McGuire had Burchell, Winter and Morgan groomed for the fray, while Connie Mack thought "Rube" Vickers would be about the man to fool the visitors.

The elongated manager of the Athletics said before the game started: "I consider the Red Sox the most dangerous team in the American League to meet just now. The team is playing great ball and is as fast as chain lightning. It takes the best there is to beat McGuire's bunch, and we cannot afford to make errors when those fast Boston youngsters are on the bases."

The Athletics have won six straight games and they are confident that they can keep a-going indefinitely, as their pitchers are in good shape.

McGuire said: "Aside from Laporte's fractured rib all our men are in good shape. Laporte is not having much trouble with his rib, but he cannot take many chances with it. We have made arrangements to leave Philadelphia to-morrow night at 8 o'clock, landing in Boston early Sunday morning."

Cy Young is expected to pitch one of the games to-morrow.

BY DYKE CLARK.

SOUTH END BASEBALL GROUNDS, July 3.—It was roasting hot when the Doves and the Trolley Dodgers got into action for the second game. Bathing suits would have been welcome to the sweltering ball tossers as the white flannels were saturated with humidity and the dust stuck, making them grimy objects to look upon.

The outlook of showers helping out to cool things off was satisfactory to the athletes, as they preferred them to the baking atmosphere.

The Doves had the most important position to fulfil to take the game and get on even terms with the visitors, who succeeded in copping the opening setto, and such treatment from a tail-end team needed some attention at the first opportunity.

The Dodgers, with Pat Donovan directing their welfare, were dangerous looking for any team, and the Doves had a big job on their hands.

Joe Kelley looked over his youngster, Tom McCarthy, who put the Phillies to the bad when they came here, and the pigmy was willing to put one over on the Dodgers.

One of the Dodgers' veterans was slated to act against the Doves in McIntyre.

VETO THREAT BY HIBBARD

Mayor George A. Hibbard this afternoon announced that in case the aldermen passed the order from the Common Council, appropriating $500,000 for street improvements he would veto the order. He said:

"I will sign an appropriation of $250,000 for street improvements, but I will not sign one for $500,000."

$1 PER WORD TO ROOSEVELT

OYSTER BAY, July 3.—The recent visits of magazine editors to Sagamore Hill, it was learned to-day, were something more than pleasure trips.

It was business the editors were after, and the competition for Mr. Roosevelt's impressions of the dark continent which he will reduce to typewriting on his return from the big hunt was so keen that more than one dollar a word is said to have been offered for the right to publish the story.

BANDITS LOOT TRAIN OF $180,000 IN RUSSIA.

TEHERAN, July 3.—This city is perfectly quiet now. Since it was put under martial law on June 24 there has not been a single case of looting or robbery.

MIKADO'S CABINET TO RESIGN.

TOKIO, July 3.—The Jiji, which is Prime Minister Saionji's organ, announces that the cabinet will resign to-morrow on account of the prolonged ill-health of the premier. Public opinion ascribes the resignation to friction between the Genro, or elder statesmen, and the cabinet over financial situation.

BRYAN MEN START WAR ON PARKER RESOLUTION

SCORE PROPOSED EULOGY OF CLEVELAND AS PLOT TO DISRUPT PARTY.

DENVER, July 3.—War is on over the threatened attempt to pass resolutions in the Democratic national convention eulogizing ex-President Cleveland. The Bryan men are angry, and declare that the resolutions prepared by Judge Alton B. Parker are merely offered to hurt the Nebraskan.

Coming like a firebrand among kegs of powder is the scorching letter of Editor Henry Watterson of Louisville, who denounces the Parker resolution and scores Parker himself as a tool of the Ryan-Belmont gang of plunderers.

The publication of the resolutions drawn up by Judge Parker has opened the most bitter ante-convention warfare known among the Democrats in years.

To-day the friends of the Nebraskan are lined up to defeat the Parker resolve. Never in the history of Democracy has such bitter feeling been awakened.

"Courts and Finance" Objectionable.

The portion of the Parker resolution which particularly aroused the ire of the friends of Mr. Bryan relate to Mr. Cleveland's record on the question of maintaining the integrity of the courts and fiances, the paragraph being as follows:

"He respected the integrity of our courts and so insisted upon strict enforcement of the law that every honest man or interest might be protected and all offenders punished, without fear or favor.

"He maintained the public credit and honor, stood firm as a rock in defense of sound principles of finance, and resisted dangerous economic doctrines and practices left by the Republican party as a heritage of our people."

It was said to-day by Mayor Dahlman of Omaha, a Bryan leader, that these expressions are but thinly veiled attacks upon Mr. Bryan and his well-known attitude on the question of adopting an anti-injunction plank, and his position in 1896 and 1900 on the money question.

Questions Out of Place.

"These questions have no proper place," said Mr. Dahlman, "in resolutions intended only to honor the name of the late Mr. Cleveland. Mr. Bryan's personal tribute to the memory of the late ex-President was of a character proving that no man honored Mr. Cleveland more nor would go further in giving him credit for advancing the interests of the Democratic party.

"It is true that Mr. Bryan and Mr. Cleveland had different views on many questions of party policy, and, with the rare tact which he always exhibits, Mr. Bryan refrained from any allusions that might provoke strife in the party. It is my opinion that the Democratic National Convention, in adjourning out of respect to Mr. Cleveland's memory, should follow Mr. Bryan's example."

Say It Would Be Disgraceful.

The members of the committee on convention arrangements are unanimously of the opinion that the Parker resolutions would provoke a discussion and possibly a fight, which they desire to avoid. Several members of the committee, who do not care to be publicly quoted, did not hesitate to say, however, that in their opinion an argument in the convention over such a resolution as this would be disgraceful and would injure the party in the eyes of the country.

It was therefore determined to take immediate steps to ward off any such possibility.

TRYING TO ENLIST LABOR MEN IN WAR AGAINST BRYAN

DENVER, Col., July 3.—That organized labor will join the opponents of William J. Bryan in the effort to defeat the Nebraskan's nomination for President by the Democratic National Convention, is the belief of many of the leaders now on the ground.

President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor is already on his way here, having left Washington yesterday, and he will be joined on the route by others high in labor circles. Their arrival is awaited with much concern, especially in view of the fight already begun over the anti-injunction question.

The Johnson boomers are on the alert to enlist the labor chieftains in their cause.

Colonel Frederick B. Lynch of Minnesota, Governor Johnson's campaign manager, has given out a letter which he says he received from a prominent Democrat in Boston, in which the statement is made that President Samuel Gompers and others of the American Federation of Labor are opposed to the nomination of Bryan, on the ground that Bryan will be defeated and the anti-injunction plank will be blamed for his defeat.

"New England Just Hoping."

The name of the writer of the letter has not been made public, but its publication has caused considerable stir among Democrats here.

The letter, in part, is as follows:

"Boston, June 28, '08.

"Fred B. Lynch:

"Dear Sir—Old New England is just hoping. No doubt about the platform being acceptable to the labor people, but in that direction it would be nullified by Bryan's nomination.

"There is but one sentiment in the East and that is 'Johnson can win if nominated' and of all the strange political situations that have ever developed in the history of either party is one which prompts one of the leading district delegates from the State to say to-day: 'You're right, but we must rid the party of Bryan and the only way to do it is to nominate him knowing that it will mean defeat and his political end.'

"My God, what a compliment!

"I had planned to go out, as my acquaintance with the Maine, New Hampshire and Rhode Island delegates is quite extensive, and it was a case of 'every little helps,' but I could not connect. I have had a talk with one of the boys in regard to a pamphlet for circulation at Denver in reference to Bryan's editorial characterization of Cleveland as 'a bunco steerer,' etc. I would have gladly handled it had I gone out.

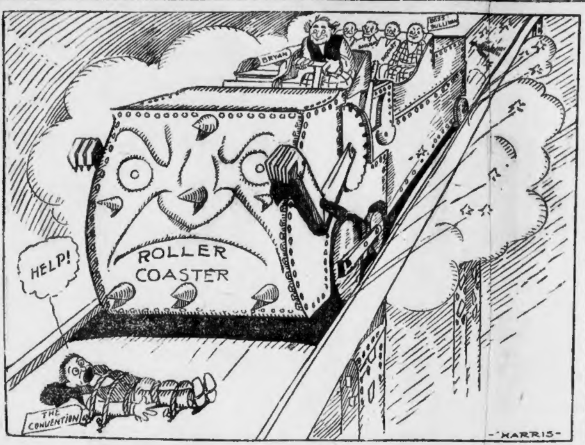
"You probably know better than we here that Gompers is opposed to Bryan's nomination. Quincy is probably paying Douglas for Vice-President, and it's a good bet that it's under Bryan's sweat band.

"Well, here's to more than one ballot, that's all. Give us Johnson and we'll tear up the old carpets in a couple of New England States."

New York Chiefs Arrive.

The prospective permanent chairman of the convention, Representative Henry D. Clayton of Alabama, got in before 9 o'clock to-day. He has been at Lincoln conferring with Mr. Bryan and indicated that he would give a premium for a nice quiet place in which to write a ringing speech. Later in the day, but not less in importance, came the New York train which had been speeding West under the limelight since Wednesday. It brought the last Democratic candidate for the presidency, Alton B. Parker, also Leader Murphy of Tammany, as well as McCarren of Brooklyn, Francis Burton Harrison, a vice-presidential possibility, and other notables of the New York Democracy.

Another Steam Roller Gets Busy



TO PICK SUCCESSOR OF GASTON AT DENVER

BAY STATE DELEGATES DELAY ELECTION OF NATIONAL COMMITTEEMAN.

BY WILLIAM H. ROSS.

BUFFALO, July 3.—The Massachusetts delegates of the Democratic National convention are not going to elect a National committeeman to succeed William A. Gaston until they reach Denver. This was finally decided after the train left Boston. It was schemed by one faction to hold an election on the train, but this was abandoned, perhaps owing to lack of room should it become necessary to use strong arm tactics, as employed in Springfield.

The contestants are Dr. John W. Coughlin, former Mayor of Fall River, and Daniel F. Doherty of Westfield, both delegates-at-large. The chances of Doherty, who is a millionaire whip manufacturer, are not bright. George Fred Williams is for Coughlin and he is on the spot. Lomasney of Ward 8, who put Doherty in the field in Boston some time ago, is not. Lomasney's action was supposed to be irritating to Williams. He was looked upon as coveting the place, which he had until Judge Parker carried the St. Louis nomination. Williams was not "safe and sane" enough to hold the post under the Ryan-Belmont Democrats. Hence Gaston.

Doherty Boom Is Not in Evidence.

When Doherty was sprung as a candidate by some Boston politicians Williams did not speak up for himself, but for Coughlin. Delegates, after they got going for Denver, were wary of discussing the National Committeeman question, but no Doherty boom was in evidence. Williams was evidently in control of the situation.

He prefers Coughlin to Doherty, for personal and political reasons. The Fall River man has stood by the Dedham leader in many forlorn fights.

Doherty is a Henry M. Whitney man. He got into politics when Cleveland was first elected President. He was a mere peddler of whips then. Cleveland did not think he had ability to hold down a small postmaster's job. But he proved he had enough to become a big manufacturer and enough stability to stick to the conservative faction, which handed him a lemon at a time when a small federal office was his chief ambition.

Coughlin and Doherty sat down to dinner together when it was decided to postpone the fight until Denver was reached. They were evidently amicable, but discussed the situation quite loudly.

All the delegates at large were in the party except John B. Moran. The delegation passed at midnight the border of the Adirondacks region where the District Attorney went to make his great campaign for health.

Lack of Confidence in the Atmosphere.

Oldtimers said it was a quiet crowd for a Democrat delegation to a National convention. There was not much conviviality. There was very little mixing by the faction. There was something akin to a lack of confidence in the atmosphere.

There was some convention veterans in the crowd. Among them was John O'Gara of Spencer and Colonel A. C. Drinkwater of Braintree. The latter, an original Bryan man, kept his own counsel as usual and his example was followed by most of the delegates and alternates.

The reticence seemed to be due to mutual distrust; it was not due to the enervating influence of hot weather for it was cool in the train all around and in every way. The delegation had not gone far on its westward journey before a thunder storm broke and cleared the outside air. But it did not promote harmony; there was an undercurrent indicating a desire to start some kind of a battle. But the belligerently disposed were not given a chance to raise a shindy over the question of electing a National committeeman.

One of the Williams men said: "We decided to wait until we got to Denver, where there is elbow room and pure air. They may feel different there. We have votes to spare."

But one of the most potent of the peace producers was lack of Doherty delegates. The Boston contingent, which is averse to Williams looked the crowd over and a count did not put fight in their hearts.

The number of delegates who did not show up on the train was indicative of a lack of interest in the Denver convention on the part of Massachusett Democrats. There will be a good many seats to be filled on the Massachusetts bench in the convention hall before the full vote of the State can be polled for Bryan or anybody else. Among the prominent delegates of the Bay State who failed to take the train were John P. Kane of Lawrence, Thomas J. Kenney of Boston, Edward W. Gallagher of Lowell, Thomas F. Riley of Malden, John Quinn, Jr., Daniel W. Gallagher, Charles I. Quirk, Fred J. Finnigan, James A. McInerney and Francis M. Carroll, of Boston. There were many others. Out of sixty-four delegates and alternates only about half were aboard when the train crossed the Massachusetts line.

No Discussion of Candidate or Platform.

There has not been much discussion, either as to the ticket to be nominated at Denver, or the platform. The delegates seemed to take it for granted that Bryan will head the ticket and there is an astonishing lack of interest as to who will be his running mate. The platform seems to inspire no more interest. If there was a Johnson man aboard he kept it quiet. There was no cheering for Bryan nor for anybody else.

Suspicion was more in evidence than enthusiasm. Colonel Gaston had his political agents aboard the train; they watched and were watched. Williams men said they had everything in hand and that if the other faction started any opposition tactics they would be squelched in jig time.

When the delegation train rolled West, through Massachusetts, it stopped only at Ayer Junction, Fitchburg, Gardner, Greenfield and North Adams. There were only a few persons at the station in each place. The population showed less interest in the party than if the train had carried one solitary Barnum & Bailey cage.

SCREAMS SAVE DROWNING MAN

SWAMPSCOTT, July 3.—After shooting himself twice with a revolver, Michael Sullivan of No. 17 Delle avenue, Roxbury, rushed into the surf at Phillips Beach and was saved from drowning after the screams of a woman had attracted two men who dragged him from the water in spite of his attempt to fight them off and cries of "I want to die."

He has a bullet wound below his right ear and another just over the heart. He was taken by the police to the Lynn Hospital, where the doctors asserted that neither bullet wound was necessarily fatal.

CURE FOLLOWED YEAR OF AGONY

Intense Itching Eczema Drove Him Nearly to Despair—Chief Surgeon of a London Hospital Called It Worst Case He Had Ever Seen—Got Little or No Relief Until

CUTICURA STOPPED HIS UNBEARABLE TORTURE

"About four years ago, in London, I was troubled by a severe itching and dry, scurfy skin on my ankles and feet. The same, in a few days, was the case with my arms and scalp. I could hardly keep from scratching, which, I need hardly say, made it worse. Then large red patches appeared, with inflammation and soreness. After ten days, thousands of small red pimples formed. On becoming dry, these caused intense itching. I was advised to go to the hospital for diseases of the skin. I did so and was an out-patient for a month or more, the chief surgeon saying: 'I never saw such a bad case of eczema.' But I got little or no relief. Then I tried many so-called remedies, but I became so bad that I almost gave up in despair. On coming to this country I heard so many accounts of cures by Cuticura Remedies that I resolved, as a last resource, to give them a trial. This was after suffering agonies for twelve months, and right glad am I that I did so, for I was relieved of the almost unbearable itching after two or three applications of Cuticura Ointment. I continued its use, combined with a liberal use of Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Resolvent Pills and am more than thankful to say that after using three sets of the Remedies, I was completely cured. I can only add that, should any one be suffering as I did, I hope that they will do as I did, and I am sure of the results. Henry Searle, 2022 Cross St., Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 8 and 10, '07."

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humor of Infants, Children, and Adults consists of Cuticura Soap (25c.) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c.) to Heal the Skin, and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.), (or in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60) to Purify the Blood. In the Dorchester District Court to-day, Joseph Toomey, who shot his mother yesterday, was held in $1,000 to await the result of her injuries. GLACIA CALLA GETS GEM WRIT

Edward Dennett of Fitchburg is restrained from disposing of pawn tickets on jewelry alleged to be the property of Lillian Roy, or as she is more familiarly known, Glacia Calla, and the Collateral Loan Company is restrained from disposing of the property by the terms of a temporary injunction granted by Judge Fox in the Superior Court to-day.

The loan company filed a demurrer and the date for argument on this was set for July 15.

The difficulty grows out of a transaction which Glacia Calla had with the loan company about two years ago. At that time she raised $2,200 on a diamond necklace and other jewels pledged with the company. Upon the representation of Dennett that he could secure another $1,000 for her on the jewelry, she alleges that she gave him the tickets and she asserts that he neither secured the money nor returned the tickets.

FEAR RAID ON MILK ON 4TH

In order to prevent the wholesale thefts of milk from doorways in the wee, small hours of to-morrow morning by thirsty celebrators who have been up all night, all the big milk dealers in Boston are to deliver milk this afternoon instead of to-morrow. Housewives in all Boston suburbs today received notices with their morning milk announcing the fact that milk for the glorious Fourth will be delivered to-day on an extra trip.

In years past thousands of bottles of milk have been stolen during the early morn of the Fourth by boys and girls out for a lark. Stealing milk was a part of their celebration. In some cases it was taken by thirsty celebrators, who couldn't get a drink in any other way, owing to the fact that the stores were closed.

'PEACEMAKER'S' FLIGHT PLANNED FOR TOMORROW

Big Airship at Huntington Avenue Grounds Ready to Make Ascension.

Loveland M. Francis and Edward MacGregor will fly their airship Peacemaker late to-morrow afternoon at the American League baseball grounds on Huntington avenue, unless some unforeseen accident prevents. Both men are convinced that within another twenty-four hours they will have shown the world that their machine is the best of its kind.

Repairs were completed by Mr. Francis to-day on the big rent in the gas bag caused by a sudden gust of wind striking it three days ago. MacGregor spent to-day tinkering with the engines.

"We will make an ascent to-morrow surely, unless something unexpected happens," said Mr. Francis to-day. "The apparatus will be all ready to-morrow, and all that will be necessary is to fill the bag with gas. We have the machine now so that it is under instant control. To guard against an accident like that of last Tuesday we will protect the bag with a canvas fence to shut off any sudden gust of wind."

PLATFORM IS BUILT TO MEET BRYAN'S VIEWS

Draft for Denver Convention Modelled After the Nebraska Document.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 3.—The platform which the Resolutions Committee of the Democratic National Convention at Denver will probably present is practically completed. It is very like the Nebraska State Democratic platform written by Mr. Bryan last March. It is one of the shortest political platforms in history.

It challenges the Republicans for failing to uphold the policies professed by the Roosevelt administration.

It arraigns the Republicans for retreating from the "advanced position taken by their titular leader during the last four years."

It contains a fitting reference to the death of Grover Cleveland.

It rejoices in the signs of awakening as shown by the many graft investigations and the laying bare of the methods of the representatives of predatory wealth to debauch elections and prey upon the public. It regards this as the overshadowing issue of the day.

Anti-pass and anti-rebate laws are approved.

The platform opposes the centralization of the powers of government. It favors the compelling of foreign corporations to submit their legal disputes to the courts of the States in which they do business.

It favors the election of United States Senators by direct popular vote. It urges the enforcement of the criminal laws against trusts and trust magnates.

An immediate revision of the tariff is demanded with the placing of imported articles controlled by trusts on the free list.

The platform favors an income tax and a national inheritance tax.

An enlargement of the powers of national and State railway commission to prevent discrimination and extortion is demanded, and laws against the watering of stocks as favored.

It favors national postal savings banks.

It advocates an emergency currency controlled by the Federal government.

The platform favors the eight-hour day for Federal labor and the adjustment of labor disputes through arbitration.

It advocates modification of the law relating to injunction to prevent the issuing of the writ in industrial disputes except after notice to the defendants; permitting trial of the dispute before another judge than the one issuing the writ, and, third, submitting the dispute to a jury, should the alleged contempt be committed outside the presence of the court.

An employer's liability law is urged.

Imperialism is condemned as "an inexcusable blunder," and Philippine independence as soon as possible is favored.

GRAY AND M'NEILL MOST DISCUSSED FOR SECOND PLACE

DENVER, July 3.—Who will be the Vice-Presidential nominee of the Democratic party?

That question is discussed in Denver today more energetically than ever. It seems probable that the place will go to the East. The men who are looked upon as the four leading candidates are: George Gray, of Delaware, who does not care for it, and whose boomers think he should be the head of the ticket.

Archibald McNeill of Connecticut, strong with the laboring classes and who expects to have New York and New England with him at the start.

John W. Kern of Indiana, who will be in Denver this evening with his boom and who is backed by Tom Taggart.

James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, not outspoken for the place, but considered strong in certain parts of the East and South.

There is Towne also to be considered, but a majority of the leaders do not look upon him as a possibility. There is Governor Chamberlain of Oregon, but no one will concede that the Far West has a chance.

One of the strongest points in favor of McNeill developed with the arrival of Thomas F. Grady of New York. He has taken headquarters with the McNeill people at the Metropole Hotel and seems to have taken a decided fancy to that end of the vice-presidential group in Denver. One story is that Grady is to lend his silver tongue to the McNeill candidacy when nominations are in order.

EDISON NOW BIDS FOR STREET LIGHTING

ELECTRIC COMPANY'S FIGURES GO TO THE FINANCE COMMISSION.

Mayor Hibbard to-day instructed Superintendent of Streets Emerson to lay before the Finance Commission the three bids received Wednesday for lighting the streets, parks and alleys of the city with gas and naphtha lamps.

The proposition of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company to supply forty and sixty candle power lights where gas and naphtha are now in use also goes to-day to the Finance Commission under instructions from Mayor Hibbard.

Superintendent of Streets Emerson completed to-day a comparative tabulation of the bids received Wednesday, and found that on the three kinds of lights mostly used by the city, the single mantle gas, the single mantle naphtha and the three mantle gas, the bidding was very close between the Cleveland Street Lighting Company and the Rising Sun Street Lighting Company. The difference is $1,297.20 in favor of the Cleveland Company. The figures are: Cleveland Street Lighting Company, $319,186.60; Rising Sun Street Lighting Company, $320,483.20; Sunlight Illuminating Company of Pittsburg, $340,180.20.

The estimate by the Lamp Department for doing the lighting under the specifications was $358,343.92. The Lamp Department did not include in its estimates any expense for office and inspection charges.

The lighting contract is the heaviest single contract that Mayor Hibbard will be called upon to award this year. Over $1,600,000 will be spent under the terms of the contract.

To-day after Superintendent Emerson had conferred with Mayor Hibbard, the Mayor reached the conclusion that the city could with benefit to itself afford to wait until the Finance Commission investigates all phases of the lighting question, including the offer of the Edison company for the elimination of all gas and naphtha lamps and the substitution of electric incandescents.

BATTLE FOR NEW TRIAL FOR DOOMED CHINESE

Living in the shadow of the death chair, their yellowish Oriental visages showing signs of prison pallor and a severe mental strain, the nine Chinamen convicted of murdering a number of their countrymen in the shooting-up of Chinatown on August 2, last year, appeared in the Superior Criminal Court to-day and listened to their counsel, Harvey H. Pratt, argue his motion that a new trial be granted the prisoners.

Warry Charles, once a government inspector and interpreter, and reputed leader of the band of assassins, presented a changed appearance. Confinement in the Charles Street Jail and a realization of the plight in which he is placed by being found guilty of murder in the first degree, and with the death chair facing him if a new trial is not granted, have caused a careworn, haggard look on his formerly smiling face.

Are Closely Guarded.

The prisoners, closely guarded, were led into court headed by Min Sing, followed by Hom Woon, Leong Gong, Wong Duck, Wong How, Joe Guey, Dong Bok Ling, Yee Jung and Warry Charles.

Judges Pierce and Brown, who presided at the trial, entered shortly afterward, and Harvey Pratt, attorney for the prisoners, read the motion for a new trial on the grounds that the verdict was against the weight of the evidence.

Declaring that the prisoners were the victims of a conspiracy on the part of certain Chinamen to connect them with the crimes, Lawyer Pratt argued at length that false testimony had been introduced by witnesses for the government and that the case had been prepared not by the district attorney's office, but by the conspirators who sought to wreak vengeance especially on Warry Charles, Dong Bok Ling, Joe Guey and Wong Duck.

Lawyers Argue.

Counsel declared that the jury had erred, that instead of simply reading the evidence each day or a summary of it, they had evidently discussed it and found certain facts true, otherwise they never could have reached a decision in two and a half hours at a trial that occupied thirty-seven days.

He declared that it was impossible for the jury to have passed upon all the facts in the case in that length of time. If the verdict was allowed to stand the symbols of justice might as well be discarded.

Lawyer Pratt occupies the entire afternoon session in analyzing the evidence to sustain his contention that a new trial should be granted. Assistant District Attorney McGettrick, whose argument for conviction was generally conceded to be one of the ablest pleas ever heard in the criminal court, will argue against the allowance of the motion.

SNATCHED BABE FROM TRACKS

Mrs. Martha Peterson of Water street, Quincy, is to-day thanking and praising the heroism of Conductor H. R. Morton of the Old Colony Street Railway, who, standing on the fender of his rapidly moving car, snatched her baby from the track. Had he slipped or faltered the child would have been ground to death.

Standing nearby, but unable to reach her child in time, was Mrs. Peterson, the mother. With dilated eyes and too horrified to speak, she saw the conductor reach far out as the car approached and scoop her baby clear of the tracks. Passing the child to the arms of the mother, Morton gave the signal to go ahead before a chance was afforded to thank him.

FIND WATCH AND $5 IN GOLD HUNT

J. W. Winters of No. 98 Lexington street, East Boston, followed the clew in to-day's instalment of the mystery story, "Hidden—Not Lost," to the famous public building where thousands get information daily and found a gold watch valued at $50 in the Public Library. Mr. Winters is one of the most alert of gold hunters, and has been in the competition every day since it started.

Michael J. Gaines, a deaf mute, of No. 84 East Lenox street, Boston, found $5 within "200 feet of the AMERICAN office." It was in Bedford street. This clew also was in to-day's chapter of the story.

FREIGHT TRAIN KILLS WOMAN

An unknown woman was struck down by a freight train in the Boston & Maine yards in Charlestown at noon to-day and killed. The woman was in yard 13 at the No. 1, freight shed. A train was coming down the track, and Foreman Walter Baker of shed 11 saw that she was in danger, and shouted to her. She evidently did not understand him, for she paid no attention, and was caught between the shed and the moving train.

Washing Is Hard Work.

Sensible women adopt everything and anything that makes it easier.

They use washing machines; and find them useful.

They use clean water; or if it is not clean they do what they can to make it clean.

But even with a washing machine and clean water, it is not possible to do satisfactory work unless the soap is good. Right there is where a great many women make a mistake. They buy this, that or the other brand of soap because it is cheap or because they get premiums for the wrappers. They save, perhaps, a cent a cake and they take two, three or even four hours more time to get through their work than is necessary.

At best, washing is hard work. And the sensible thing to do is to adopt anything that will make it easier.

The greatest time, labor, money and clothes saver that has been invented in years is P. & G. Naphtha Soap. Try it.

"HIDDEN—NOT LOST"

$5,000 IN BURIED TREASURE.

By "The Money Man."

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

WALTER SINCLAIR, a young business man from Cleveland, meets a woman of regal beauty in Boston. She gives her name as Madame Alvarez. She is mysterious and is pursued by enemies. She induces Sinclair to promise to aid her. He gets a chauffeur named Dalton and a red automobile to help out.

The woman is pursued by two men and a woman who claims to be Dr. Malthus, proprietor of a sanitarium, and his assistants, Dr. Bernot and Rose Ferrati. Dr. Malthus says that Madame Alvarez is insane, that she escaped from his hospital and stole jewels valued at $150,000 from a Back Bay family.

Madame Alvarez had secreted in Boston a valuable jewelled box, after which she intrusted to Sinclair a package which she implored him to guard sacredly. He lost this package and went to the home of Dr. Malthus to dine, after the doctor had told him that he could tell him something about the missing package.

Dr. Malthus impressed on Sinclair the story that the police were after Madame Alvarez, and that it were better that the hiding place of the jewel box be disclosed, and that her whereabouts made known before she and himself were arrested.

It was at this point, when Sinclair was apparently about to tell all he knew, that he asked the doctor if they were alone. The doctor said they were, but the visitor just then caught sight of a face peering from behind a curtain. It was the face of the woman who had been following Madame Alvarez.

CHAPTER XIV.

SINCLAIR tried to conceal his surprise, but he felt sure the keen-eyed doctor must have noted his change of expression at sight of the woman's face, which he had surprised peering at him from behind the portieres.

"I have seen the box of which you speak, doctor," he said, "but I did not know that it had, as you say, been stolen or that it contained jewels. Neither do I know what disposal Madame Alvarez made of it. Sometime I will tell you the whole story of my night's acquaintanship with this woman, but I cannot now. I am too tired to-night and must beg you to excuse me until some other time—any time to-morrow."

"But delays are dangerous," objected the doctor, showing for the first time that evening a trace of irritation, "both from your own standpoint and mine. At any minute the police are likely to capture Madame Alvarez and even now, unless I am very much mistaken, detectives from headquarters are watching the hotel for your return. If there is any information you can give why not give it now?"

But Sinclair, his suspicions thoroughly aroused by the fact that a woman had been listening to their conversation when the doctor had said positively that they were alone, remained firm. To clinch the matter he rose to go and the doctor did not urge him further. It was left that Dr. Malthus should telephone him in the morning and arrange another appointment. As they shook hands the doctor forestalled an inquiry which had long been on his lips.

"Oh, I was forgetting your packet," he said, reaching into a drawer of the desk and drawing out the little black leather object which had already caused Sinclair so many anxious hours. "You dropped it just as you turned away from us at the L station this morning and by a lucky chance I saw it. I called to you, but you did not hear and knowing that I was going to see you to-night I did not run after you as I should have done had I known it was valuable enough to be worth a reward of $1,000."

Man Who Found $100 by Solving 4-11-44 Clew

This is the shrewd-looking face of E. A. Whynot, the young man who solved the 4-11-44 clew to the whereabouts of $100 of the AMERICAN'S "Hidden—Not Lost" treasure. He tells elsewhere in this issue of the AMERICAN how and where he found the money.

The doctor looked inquiringly at Sinclair, but the latter offered no hint as to why the packet should be worth so much. He only thanked the doctor profusely and went out into the night. As he thrust the packet into his pocket he was relieved to see that the seals were apparently intact.

When Sinclair left the house it was after midnight. In his excitement he had forgotten to ask where he could get a car, and the doctor, who toward the close of the interview had been in by no means a good humor, had made no suggestion of calling a carriage. He had not the faintest idea of the quickest way back to the hotel, and seeing no one from whom he could inquire, he walked aimlessly down the street in the direction from which he judged the cab had brought him.

Block after block he walked through the deserted streets. There was not even a policeman in sight, and at every turn he looked in vain for a trolley car or some other means of getting back to the Somerset. At length he reached a square that looked strangely familiar. Surely it was here that the cab had stopped earlier in the evening and the driver so mysteriously disappeared. Yes, there was the park and the monument and the old colonial house. He paused to look about him, wondering what the strange occurrence had meant, and regretting that he had not asked Dr. Malthus about it.

Sinclair passed one of the most popular and famous public buildings in Boston. A small party of men stood near the entrance as though waiting for the doors to open. Some of their talk was easily overheard.

"I propose to marshal my forces to-day," said one, "and locate that treasure at the spot where Boston started. I am going to find the distinguishing mark. I hear it is near a once famous hotel——"

"Then," remarked another, "there is that entrance to Harvard College, and what do you know about 'Uncle Sam?' He carries the mails, I know that.

"When I was in East Boston this morning I saw some people looking for something near the entrance to the tunnel. They had not found it."

In the meantime Sinclair had not recovered his lost package.

Behind him he heard a stealthy step. Then came a crushing blow on the head which sent him reeling to the pavement. All was as black as death, and it was a blackness that hurt.

That was the last he remembered until he awoke to consciousness of a racking pain that extended through every bone of his body and reached a deadly climax in his head. With effort he raised one hand to his head and was mildly surprised to find it swathed in bandages damp with some evil smelling liniment. What had happened? Where was he? For all he knew, in these first minutes of returning consciousness, he might have been in the moon.

As his senses slowly returned he recalled the evening at the Malthus house, the long walk through the dark, silent streets and last of all the crushing blow, which from the pain he now felt must have almost fractured his skull. But where was he now?

With languid interest he looked about him. He was lying on a narrow bed in a small low-ceilinged room. Save for his coat and collar and tie, which lay across a chair, he was fully dressed. The room was cheaply furnished and not over clean. The wallpaper was torn and dingy, no carpet covered the unpainted floor, and in one corner was a heap of old newspapers and two or three broken bottles.

Through the dirty panes of the one window the afternoon sun was pouring. His watch pointed to the hour of 4 o'clock, but whether it was the first afternoon after his visit to Dr. Malthus or the second he had not the remotest idea. Why was he there? He could not understand.

Thought of the precious packet nerved him with sudden energy. Forgetting his aching head, he sprang to his feet and with trembling fingers reached into the pocket of his overcoat. Thank heaven! The packet was still there, with seals unbroken.

He tried the door. It was not locked, and from the dingy hallway without there came no sound of life. The house was deserted.

Making his toilet as best he could in such a place, he put on his coat and collar and hurried out of the house, in which for some unexplained reason he had for nearly twenty-four hours been an unconscious prisoner. Luckily there was a cab close at hand. Sinclair hailed it, and stepped from it into the Hotel Somerset just before 6 o'clock.

The clerk, gazing in astonishment at his bandaged head and dishevelled appearance, handed him a telegram and several business letters. He tore open the message, and read:

"Nearly frantic over your silence. Arrive in Boston to-morrow noon. If alive and well meet me at station. Marion."

With remorse he recalled that he had left the room the night before without sending the message to Marion. With added remorse he noted one of the hotel detectives eyeing him intently, and he thought bitterly that his fiancee might arrive just in time to see him placed under arrest.

More clews in Sunday's instalment of the great mystery story. If the reader gets or fails to get any of the treasure to-day, be on the alert for next Sunday's American.

AGED MAN, SUED BY GIRL WARD, WINS FREEDOM

James F. Durgin, seventy, a retired lumber merchant of Silver Lake, N. H., who on May 14 was sent to jail for contempt of court was to-day released by the order of the United States Circuit Court. His sister, Mrs. J. Cockerell, furnished a $1,000 bond to produce her aged brother to the court whenever he is wanted.

Two years ago Louise Western, a ward of Mr. Durgin, brought suit in the circuit court to recover a $5,000 Massachusetts State bond. She won the suit, but Durgin refused to give up the bond and on May 14 was sentenced to jail for contempt.

At to-day's hearing the testimony was to the effect that Mrs. Louise Kindstrom of Callender street, Dorchester, has had the bond for some time and refused to give it up. According to a statement to the court Mrs. Kindstrom disappeared six weeks ago and her whereabouts are unknown.

EVELYN WALSH ENGAGED; HEIR TO $25,000,000

By Boston American Leased Wire.

DENVER, Col., July 3.—New York and the East generally, where both are well known, will be interested in the announcement made here to-day of the engagement of "Ned" McLean, son of John R. McLean of Cincinnati and Washington, to Miss Evelyn Walsh, daughter of Thomas F. Walsh, the Colorado mining man, who is reputed to be worth $25,000,000. McLean's father owns the Cincinnati Enquirer and the Washington Post.

Young McLean is now visiting at Wolfhurst, the Summer home of the Walshes, just outside this city. The family has planned to have a house party during the Democratic convention next week, at which Representative and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth and Mr. and Mrs. Medill McCormick are expected to be present.

MASON'S CHARM FOR MORISON

Lindsay Morison, manager of the Boston Theatre, is to-day wearing a handsome diamond studded Masonic watch charm which the members of the Massachusetts Lodge presented to him last evening.

Mr. Morrison is too busy to take a vacation or have a birthday celebration, but the members of the lodge prevailed upon him to take a night off and when he entered the lodge room he was presented with the charm. Lindsay was an actor before he became manager, but he couldn't control his emotions, so great was the surprise.

DEDICATE COUNCIL CHAMBER TO-NIGHT

Representative Knights of Columbus of Massachusetts and Boston, men prominent in Catholic circles in church and State and city, are to take part to-night in the dedication of the new council chamber of the Columbus Club of Dorchester. All the past and present officers of the five councils composing the club are to be present. Besides the dedicatory ceremonies the anniversary of the burning of the mortgage on the Columbus Club building is to be celebrated.

SUN WORSHIPPERS PUT CURSE ON RIDICULERS

HIGH PROPHETESS SWEARS FOES OF MAZDAZNANS SHALL NEVER PROSPER.

LOWELL, July 3.—The curse of the Mazdaznan was solemnly pronounced to-day upon the several Boston newspapers that have been writing disparaging stories on the Mazdaznan Peace Conference in this city. The curse was called down by Mrs. Maria Ruth Elizabeth Hilton, prophetess of the cult. It was enunciated solemnly. So far as is known, this is the first time in the history of the society that the attitude of the newspapers has compelled the followers of Dr. Ottoman Adusht Hanish to go so far.

The Mazdaznans will sit up all night to-night. There will be no giant crackers, because they don't believe in them. Out in Peace Temple, on Columbus avenue, the 300 assembled Mazdaznans, from San Francisco, Denver, New York, Worcester, Montreal, Boston and Billerica, will discuss questions of "Peace and War." None but members will be admitted. An important proclamation will, however, be sent out to all the nations of the world.

"Curse Is Upon Them."

"It is a matter for deep regret," Prophetess Hilton said to-day to a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN, "that several of the Boston newspapers have chosen to misrepresent and ridicule us. Newspapers that have given offence by such ridicule will never prosper.

"The Mazdaznan curse is upon them!"

The prophetess went on to explain that the funny bones of several reporters were touched when they were refused admission to the Mazdaznan conferences. Some of these reporters, she says, climbed upon nearby roofs to peer into the temple. When they were driven away, they proceeded to write absurd stories.

Mrs. Hilton's daughter by her first marriage, the beautiful Ruth Mildred Brubaker, known among Mazdaznans as the vestal virgin, stood at her mother's elbow as the prophetess pronounced the curse.

All-Night Conference.

"The Mazdaznans," said Mrs. Hilton, "will hold an all night conference in the Temple to-night for the discussion of war and peace questions. The service is in observance of the Fourth of July, and is for members only. We celebrate the national holiday, but not in the commonly accepted way. We do not believe that anything is accomplished for the people of America by setting off fireworks.

"We honor the American flag, and we believe that America is to be the savior nation of the world because of the freedom of speech and thought that is permitted here. But we deem it our duty to avoid and discourage all symbols of war.

"History will be made at to-night's meeting of the Mazdaznans. We shall observe the Fourth of July by formulating at to-night's all-night session a peace proclamation which shall later go out to the countries of the world."

James Monroe
Fifth President of the United States.

IT was in the Hall of Oratory, William and Mary College, 1776. Patrick Henry stood on the platform; eloquently, passionately, convincingly he spoke of human rights, constitutional guarantees, Personal Liberty.

A young student, tall and blonde, with eyes of blue and heart of fire, listened intently. Tossing aside cap and gown, he buckled on his sword, saying, "Words are good; deeds are better."

At Harlem, White Plains and Brandywine, he fought bravely; and on a bitter cold Christmas morning his blood splashed the frozen paving stones of old Trenton Town.

Step by step he rose to power; and today his name is inseparably associated with the most significant international Doctrine of modern times.

At three score and fourteen he died—a true Virginia gentleman—the descendant of an old family of Scottish Cavaliers—and at his hospitable home at Oak Hill, good ale was brewed and ever on his board.

WHAT IS MOST NECESSARY TO A WOMAN'S HAPPINESS---By DOROTHY DIX

DOROTHY DIX

WHAT is most necessary to a woman's happiness?

Is it money, and the things that money buys?

Cynical people say that it is. They point out that, so great is woman's love of luxury, she is often willing to sell her soul for it, and that the majority of women who sin do not do so because they are temperamental, but because they want to wear French finery and ride in automobiles.

The answer to this argument is that these women are not happy. You have only to note the restless look in their eyes, and listen to the hollow ring of their laughter, to know that their pretense of being satisfied and content with life is as false as the painted roses upon their cheeks and the golden tresses on their heads.

These same cynics also advise girls to marry for money, because they say that in a little while romance is bound to fade, illusions to be shattered, and passion to burn itself out; and then that the rich woman has her establishment to console her, whereas the poor woman has nothing.

Not Happiness

But if you started out to paint a picture of happiness you would never select as your model the disillusioned wife whose existence is bounded on the north by clothes, and on the east by bridge, and on the south by a yacht, and on the west by a limousine car.

A woman may have all that the purse of a Rockefeller could buy and yet be the most miserable creature alive.

You cannot pile enough rose paint and diamonds above an empty heart to stop its aching.

You cannot buy an automobile that will travel as fast it will leave loneliness behind it.

Just as many tears are wept into embroidered pillows as ever stain plain cotton ones.

Just of itself, money never yet made any woman happy.

In spite of all this, however, probably nine-tenths of the women in the world think that if they just had plenty of money they would be perfectly happy. The constant burden of their complaints is that they can't have this and they can't have that, because they can't afford it—hence their tears.

Other women think if they had fame and success they would be perfectly happy. They think that to see their name in print, or to hear the plaudits of an audience, would bring them complete bliss.

But fame never satisfied anybody; least of all, a woman. The woman who is eminently successful has to buy her laurel crown at a great price.

She must give up all the sweets of home and domesticity.

She must either live a solitary life, or else turn over to hirelings all the dear little familiar services that a woman loves to do for her own.

Love Is Not Enough

Hired hands must put her babies to sleep; hired ears must listen to their prayers; hired watchers must sit beside their beds when they are ill, while the mother toils with pen, or laughs and grimaces upon the stage—while her heart is torn with agony.

Still other women think that if they had only love they would be happy, but love alone does not suffice.

Sometimes love is cruel as the grave. Sometimes it turns the man who loves a woman into a jealous tyrant who makes life a torment to her.

It is a strange contradiction, but it is true, that as a general thing the people who love us best treat us with least consideration. They are less careful of hurting our feelings, apparently less anxious to please us, than the merest strangers are.

All of us know women who have lived for years with husbands who never paid them a compliment, or gave any more indication of the state of their feelings than if they had been graven images; yet when the wives died the men were broken-hearted over their loss.

All of us know men who spend their lives slaving to indulge their wives in luxuries, but who never show the slightest affection in any other way.

Any woman with such a husband can sit down and by reasoning can convince herself that her husband loves her, but that sort of logic only satisfies the head. It doesn't feed the hungry heart, and that particular brand of love doesn't make a woman happy.

The "One Thing"

The one thing that makes a woman happy is tenderness. Give her that and she can make shift to do with very little else. She may be as poor as Job's turkey, and have to wear made-over clothes and last year's hats, and count her carfare; but if her husband is sorry for her because she can't have the things that she ought to have, if he tells her how he would like to dress her if he could—she will wear her old duds over a heart that is ten times as light as that of many a lady who has on the latest things from Paris.

If her husband understands her, if he can enter into her moods and tenses, if she can talk out with him all of her aspirations and her yearnings after the whatness of the what, you will never find a woman wasting any breath sighing after a career.

Women have a positive mania for vivisection. They enjoy tearing their souls to tatters and examining every fibre under a microscope, and it's because their husbands can't understand this, and don't enjoy participating in the mental clinic, that women grow dissatisfied and pine for things outside of their homes.

As for the love that is dumb, it need as well not exist for a woman. Silent devotion doesn't go for a penny's worth with her. Any affection that does her any good must express itself to her through a megaphone every hour of the twenty-four.

And the man who swears his devotion to his wife in good round oaths at every turn need do precious little else for her. She has got the kohinoor of happiness, and she feels that she can afford to dispense with all smaller jewels.

Husbands I Have Met

Sidelights on Marriage by a Sympathetic Spinster

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

NO. 2—THE MARTINET.

"WELL," said the spinster lady, dropping lightly into a chair, "here I am, Nan, actually going to visit you for a whole week and become acquainted with that prince among men, the husband you brought out of the West. Is he on view, or has he not come home yet?"

"He'll be here in a few minutes. I'm so happy to have you two meet. I know you'll get on well. George is such a wonderful man."

"Is he, dear? Well, he found a treasure in you, so he ought to be a happy man, at any rate." Then, as the latch clicked:

"There is your paragon, Nan. I can see by the look in your eyes that you're dying to meet him, so trot along; don't mind me."

"Well, dear, if you don't mind, I will. He likes to have me ready to meet him when he comes home."

A moment later a deep, rumbling bass could be heard mingling with Nan's softer tones.

"H-m-m," said the spinster lady, "George is evidently big of stature as well as brain. That voice could only come from a big man."

Finds Fault

But George she found to be a little man, sharp of feature and immaculately dressed.

"Delighted to meet you, Miss ——. Delighted to meet any of my wife's friends. Nan, dinner is five minutes late. How is it that we never can get a cook who knows enough to serve dinner at the appointed time? Other women seem to manage their servants all right, but you have no head, my dear, no head."

To the spinster lady's mind the dinner was a dainty culinary triumph; to "George" it was a series of blunders.

The soup was too salty, the tartar sauce too thin, the joint too well cooked, the vegetables too soggy. And to all his complaints his little wife cheerfully listened and meekly promised to see that things were better.

To the spinster lady he made himself charmingly agreeable. He talked well of books and music and current events, his wife all the time gazing at him as though he were inspired.

His wife he condescendingly snubbed every time she ventured an opinion.

"You are a perfect beast," thought the spinster lady fiercely. "You married the dearest girl in the world and you treat her as though she were a slave, and speak to her in a tone you would not dare use toward your cook."

Two charming children of five and seven came in for dessert. The father was proud of them, but he alternately petted and scolded them. He insisted on feeding the baby strawberries and ice cream and then scolded him for dropping strawberry juice on his frock and sent him sobbing to bed.

His wife timidly pleaded for the small culprit, but she was silenced with a "Be quiet, Nancy; if our children do not know enough to behave properly when they come to the table they should be banished. Other children do not eat like little pigs, nor would ours if they had any decent training."

She Moralizes

Late that night the spinster lady sat up in bed and moralized. "To paraphrase the immortal saying, 'the more I see of husbands the less I think of matrimony.' I know perfectly well that all the girls pity me. They all speak of me to their husband as 'poor ——,' and they all try to marry me off to their bachelor friends. Well, here is Nan married to a man whom she has always written of as a living wonder—half god, half man.

"He is a miserable little martinet, all civility to other women, all selfishness to his wife. He is nagging her to death and the poor little thing does not even know it. She adores him. Ah, well, perhaps some day I'll meet the husband whose wife I envy, but not so far yet, and yet I have met a good many husbands."

If I Were a Girl!

A Man's Ideas That Beatrice Fairfax Commends

IN a recent issue of the AMERICAN appeared an article by Beatrice Fairfax entitled "If I Were a Man." The following letter, received as a reply, is commended by Beatrice Fairfax as worthy of careful study by all her girl readers:

TO BEATRICE FAIRFAX:

I have read your article in the AMERICAN, am in hearty sympathy with what you say, and think you could have said even more than you did along that line. I do not wish to retaliate, and do not write in that spirit, but there are some things that do "beat me" very much, I must admit, and to my displeasure.

I had a mother who taught me that women were immaculate, the ideal, the personification of all that was good and best, an inspiration by which man had climbed from the beast to the man, and had still to climb from the man to the more perfect being. But this conception, I must confess at this early day of my life, is far from being correct.

That the evolution of man still depends on woman I hold to be true, yet its progress is very much retarded by her not measuring up to the ideal that her Creator has set, and by doing certain things which "beat me" very much as to how she comes to do them.

"It Beats Me!"

It beats me how girls reared in an atmosphere of good breeding, supposed to be refined and cultured, can go to a banquet, company or party, drink wine and champagne and listen to a bunch of pimple-faced, sallow-jawed cigarette fiends and toddy-blossom-nosed, bloodshot-eyed men telling a lot of coarse, unrefined, vulgar and loose jokes.

It beats me bad enough how any women, the emblem of refinement and culture, can indulge in any strong drink; but it beats me more to know how they can snicker, laugh and giggle at a conversation of half-revealed filth.

It beats me very much how a woman can be content to marry one of these "lords of creation" who has not the proper respect for woman or the right conception of her place in the universe.

It beats me how she can descend from her high station to marry one of the "lords" when she might say: "Here, Mr. Lord, you climb to my standard, or else you can not have me"—and that "lord" would do some climbing, you can bet.

It beats me how any girl can "string a man" and call that having a good time. And it beats me how she can have that good time and expect to come out all right in the end.

If I were a girl I would give men to understand that I stood for those things that are indorsed by the best thinking men and women of the age, and not for those things which have been condemned by them.

If I were a girl I would respect my sanctity and sacred prerogative so highly that no man would dare to say an unrefined word in my presence.

If I were a girl I would let young men know that I admired those who helped to support their mothers and sisters, and did not admire those who spent all their earnings in buying red socks, green neckties, blouse-seat breeches, and in going to indecent shows.

If I were a girl I would not make fun of "goodie-goodies," young men that are trying to live right lives, but I would let the world know that I placed a premium on such conduct. And I would not court the attention of "dead game sports," young men who frequent the saloons, the race track and brothels, but I would let the would know that I discountenanced such conduct, abhorred and detested it.

Single Life Wrong

If I were a girl I would give young men to understand that not one of them need expect to spend the best years of his life sowing "wild oats," and then become my husband. And I would give him to understand that I stood for the ideal—that I was a whole girl and wanted a whole man; not a part of one.

If I were a girl I would say to that young man who wanted to woo me: "You have got to respect me as a man should a woman, and I will not admit of any loose courtship."

If I were a girl I would make more demands while single, and then I would have less to make after I was married.

Why is it that there is so much trouble in the married life? It is because the single life is wrong. Let girls place their stamp of approval where it belongs, and their stamp of disapproval where it belongs, and stand out clearly for the ideal.

Please do not think that I am some old, sore bachelor, or some freshly jilted Willie, for I am neither. I am a young man twenty-five years old, that has had the good training of a Christian mother and the influence of five noble sisters, and have always been for women, and am now, and always will be. Respectfully, R. O. B.

LITTLE MEAT PATTIES

ROLL the scraps of puff paste thin (less than one-fourth of an inch) and cut them into rounds with a two and one-half or three-inch cutter. Prepare any remnants of meat, preferably chicken, veal or lamb. Beef is also good. Mince fine, moistening with gravy. Put a spoonful in the centre of half the rounds; wet the edges with cold water and cover with remaining rounds, first cutting a cross in centre of them, that the gases generated in baking may have an outlet. Bake in a quick oven until a delicate brown.

TWO IN A CANOE---By NELL BRINKLEY

No. 2 in the Series of "Summer Girls" by This Famous Artist

COMES another "pic" Sunday; this time of a man and a maid in a gay white and yellow and black shell of a canoe, slipping-slipping down the dark water with the solemn, cool green of the pines behind. And the Betty, with her eyes turned to the Summer sky, paddles sturdily and pretends to hear no other thing but the talking water, and the quiet sound of birds on the woody bank, and the whine of bees' wings as they careen past over the water. And the Billy is lazy, and he tells love tales to her while she paddles, and wishes she would turn her head a bit and forget that marvellous Summer sky. This Betty and Billy, beautifully colored and ready to frame, will be in next Sunday's AMERICAN. NELL BRINKLEY.

Expert Hints on Beauty

BY THE PROFESSOR

TO USE EGG SHAMPOO

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Will you please tell me just how to make egg shampoo and how to use it. I tried it and found it hard to get the egg out of the hair, so I know that I must not use it right.

EVELYN.

YOU probably use the water too warm. It should not be more than tepid. The hot water cooks the egg and it remains on the hair in little particles, which are almost impossible to get rid of. You can beat up the eggs and apply them to the scalp just as they are, or you can beat them up well and add an ounce of water for each egg, which is probably better, as it makes the shampoo more easily applied. Many who have blond hair use the yolks only, and a good way to apply them is to beat them up and add to two yolks half a pint of lime water. Be sure to get all the egg out of the hair and make the last rinse water cold in order to close the pores. Dry with hot towels and in the sun if possible. This is particularly necessary when you are using the yolks, in order to keep the yellow tint in the hair.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WITH ECONOMY—YES

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am nineteen years past, and have been keeping company with a young man for three years. He has asked me several times to marry him when I first went with him, but I told him to wait; it was only crazy to start in on nothing. But now we have really decided to marry, his mother being very anxious for us to do so. He is making $15 a week now, with the hope of getting $18 very soon. Do you think it advisable to start on $15, or would you wait? He is a very good fellow and loved and highly respected by all those that know him, and I know we will be the happiest couple in the world. He comes to my house every night of the week and we wait every morning at the station for each other and go down to business together, and after church on Sunday he comes up to my house and stays all day long. My folks are as crazy about him as I am (and that's going some). But what I want to know is if you think we can get married on $15 a week and not starve. I'm not extravagant, neither is he; so don't you think we can manage? P. K.

YES, I think you can marry on that sum; but you will both have to economise and manage very carefully. However, if you love each other, nothing else will matter much. After his salary is raised you will be able to save a little. Good luck and much happiness to you both!

Mothers of Great Men

The Self-Sacrificing Mother of Sainte-Beuve

By REV. THOS. B. GREGORY

CHARLES AUGUSTUS SAINTE-BEUVE well deserves a place among the world's great men. Along his line he was as supreme as the First Napoleon, as Bismarck, as Gladstone.

The Montaigne of modern times, he enjoys the very high honor of having more largely contributed to the intellectual delight of mankind than any one since the days when the old Gascon's divine gossip was the talk of Europe.

The king of literary critics, with a style that captivates while it instructs, with a range of subjects as wide as human life itself, every subject being treated with the soundest judgment at the same time that it is handled with the most consummate artistic skill, Sainte-Beuve's fame is secure.

When, in 1845, as one of the most distinguished literary men of the day, he was elected a member of the Academy, the eulogium being pronounced by the great Victor Hugo, he seemed to be at the very pinnacle of intellectual renown. He was one of the "Immortals!"

And he is one of the Immortals still, his glory undiminished, his fame as fresh today as it was sixty years ago.

Marvellous Insight

The world will never forget Sainte-Beuve, simply because Sainte-Beuve's writings are absolutely essential to every scholars' library and to every scholar's thinking, and will always be so.

In his faculty of educing the interest and significance of the most various types of human character, the great Frenchman was unapproachable. To his marvellous insight, range of sympathy, and knowledge of detail, he added an experience of men and things exceptionally rich and varied; while to all this it must be added that his works are an inexhaustible mine of facts and reflections upon every conceivable human interest.

This remarkable man was born December 23, 1804, at Boulogne-Sur-Mer, three months after his father's death. His mother, nee Coilliot, the daughter of an Englishwoman who had married a Boulogne sailor, was a woman of unusual intellectual abilities, and with the aid of a sister-in-law she had sole charge of the early education of the fatherless boy.

Having finished his home studies at the age of fourteen, young Sainte-Beuve was anxious to complete his studies in Paris, and Madame Sainte-Beuve was equally desirous of gratifying her son's wishes.

But how was she to go about it? Her husband had left her in straitened circumstances. To speak plainly, she was poor, poor to the verge of penury, and how was she to provide for her son's education in the great capital?

However, there is no limit to the possibilities of a mother's love, and somehow, we know not how, by grim self-denial, by heroic economy and resolution, the liberal education that the boy so earnestly desired was provided for, and the mother was happy.

Sublime Struggle

But the sky of the mother's life was not altogether cloudless. Her son was going to Paris—Paris, the Mecca of Thought, good thought and bad; the thought that lifted up and glorified, and the thought that degraded and ruined; and which kind of thought would her boy choose?

Touching, almost beyond anything in literary biography, is the effort of this good mother to keep her brilliant boy in the way of old-time faith. She failed, but her struggle is none the less sublime, none the less motherly in its deathless solicitude.

Sainte-Beuve became a sceptic, though the prayers of his mother were never forgotten. Throughout his life he was inclined to cherish with a peculiar delight the teachings he had received at his mother's knee.

Madame Sainte-Beuve's old age, soothed by the affectionate care of her son, was tranquil and happy, and when her boy at last was made a member of the Academy and crowned by the hands of the great Victor Hugo, the dear old mother's heart was full. Her son was forever famous, and as for his scepticism, she would leave that to God.

NEWEST SILKY FROCKS

NO Summer frock of fine silky material is complete without its yard or two of superfluous chiffon. It is the fad just at present to attach a pendant or two of chiffon somewhere on the gown and have long ends of chiffon floating about in the air. It can be attached in plaits to the back of the bodice; it can be brought over the arm and used as a scarf, or it can be tied around the head as an automobile veil.

Anty Drudge Tells How to Prevent Laundry Mistakes.

Jones—"Heavens, Jemina! Look what came back from the laundry! Three pairs of women's stockings and five petticoats. Why I've got some woman's laundry instead of my own."

Anty Drudge—"I'll tell you how to avoid mistakes like that. Get Fels-Naptha soap and have your things washed the easy way at home. They'll be cleaner and fresher and wear twice as long and then you won't get them mixed with other people's clothes."

You owe it to yourself and your folks to use Fels-Naptha.

You owe it to yourself to cut down the time of washing clothes one-half, to save yourself its drudgery, to make it easier and more pleasant all around.

You owe it to your folks to quit making washday a day of cold meals, steamy and smelly house and general bad temper.

Fels-Naptha does it, summer or winter—washes all the clothes in cool or lukewarm water, without boiling, in little time, with no hard rubbing, and makes them cleaner, whiter and sweeter than any other way.

Follow directions on the red and green wrapper.

ACQUIT SHEA, CHARGED WITH 'HORSE' FRAUD

Joseph H. Campbell Held in $1,000 Bonds; Former Labor Leader Exonerated.

COMPLAINTS OF VICTIMS

The hearing before United States Commissioner Hayes in the cases of Cornelius P. Shea, former international president of the Teamsters' Union, and Joseph H. Campbell of Charlestown, proprietor of the Bunker Hill sales stable on Bunker Hill street, charged with using the mails in a scheme to defraud, was concluded to-day. Campbell was held for the Grand Jury in $1,000 bonds, which he furnished, and Shea was discharged by the commissioner.

Postoffice Inspector D. C. McLeod gave testimony by which Assistant District Attorney E. Mark Sullivan tried to prove that Campbell and Shea had used the mails in questionable dealings with customers. Shea, however, testified that he was only an employe at the Bunker Hill stables, and that the letters he wrote to George W. Mitchell of Kennebunk, Me., were written by order of Campbell, and that while not dictated the letters were in substance what he was instructed to write. This testimony was not refuted, and Shea was released.

Inspector McLeod testified that Mitchell had purchased a mare in foal at the Bunker Hill stables through the mails, and that a roan horse was delivered instead, the roan being in such condition that it had to be shot on its arrival at the Kennebunk freight house. Letters from Shea to Mitchell were introduced and the government tried to connect him with the case.

Charles F. Lancaster and Alden A. Mills, both of Lowell to-day filed a petition in the Superior Court, seeking to have Bartly A. Sheehan, also of Lowell, restrained from erecting fences or buildings on two lots of land located within what is known as the old fair grounds. Sheehan upon hearing of this threatened to erect a fence and temporary buildings on his lots. An order and notice returnable July 11, were issued by Judge Fox.

5000 NEWSBOYS GIVEN TICKETS TO BIG PICNIC

Youngsters Pass To-morrow as Guests of the American at Caledonia Grove.

CONTEST FOR RARE PRIZES

If you see a newsboy sprinting up Washington street to-day, don't be too sure that the baseball game is over and that the boy has his bundle of AMERICAN Baseball Extras.

He's probably just training for one of the track events at the BOSTON AMERICAN Newsboys' Field Day at Caledonian Grove to-morrow.

If you see a couple of newsies tossing a ball in a side street, don't notify a policeman.

The boys are only practicing for the baseball game at to-morrow's field day. They haven't the opportunity that most boys have to practice on the Common. They have to steal a few minutes between editions in some alley.

And above all, if someone steals the morning paper from your doorway to-morrow before you're up, don't blame your newsboy for leaving it so early. He's got to get around his route early to-morrow, for the fifty special cars for Caledonian Grove leave Park square at 9 a. m. sharp.

5,000 Get Tickets.

Five thousand newsies have already secured tickets for the outing. Treasurer Nathan S. Sodekson of the Newsboys' Protective Union and his committee of fifty are seeing to it that no boy will be forgotten. The outing is for all of them.

There will be lunch, lemonade and ice cream galore. All the boys need to bring with them is their appetities. There will be sport too—barrels of it. Business rivalry among the newsies to-day gave way to an athletic rivalry. Every boy is certain that he's going to win every track event for which he enters and that his side is going to win the baseball game.

There will be two classes of contests, senior (for boys over fourteen), and junior (for "kids"), so that the smaller chaps will not be forced to compete against their elders.

Happy Gets Right Job.

Jerry Callahan, the newsboy-boxer and all-round athlete, will umpire both ball games. Fred Nolan, an old record holder, will be in general charge of the sports. Reddy Berman, who sells papers at the South station, will be announcer. Reddy will have a megaphone to help carry his voice all over the lot, though his friends say he won't need any.

Happy Rubinovitch, who sells at Pleasant street—every subway patron knows him—will be "master of the feast." What he doesn't know about eating doesn't amount to much. Some one had suggested a prize for the chap who ate the most. Everybody objected except Happy. Nobody else would have a chance.

A long line of newsboys trailed past the windows of the downtown office of the AMERICAN at No. 264 Washington street to-day, where the cups and medals to be awarded to the winners in to-morrow's events are on exhibition.

Day's Program.

The program for to-morrow is as follows:

9 a. m.—Leave Park square on special trolleys for Caledonian Grove.

10:30 a. m.—Junior baseball game between teams captained by "Jocko" Helvitz, who sells papers at the North Station, and Barney Levenson, who sells papers along Newspaper row.

10:30 a. m.—Swimming races in Charles River: Junior 50 yards, junior 100 yards, senior 50 yards, senior 100 yards, senior 400 yards.

12:15 noon—Junior track events; 100 yard dash, 220-yard dash, sack race, potato race.

1:30 p. m.—Lunch.

2:30 p. m.—Senior track—100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard dash, mile run, sack race, potato race, half-mile relay race between two teams of four men each.

4 p. m.—Senior baseball game between teams captained by Frank Russell, who sells papers at the corner of Dover and Washington streets, and Oshy Helvitz of the North Station.

6:30 p. m.—Start home.

Heavy silver cups are to be the prizes for the winning teams in the two baseball games. For the swimming and track races there will be three prizes in each event, gold, silver and bronze medals.

Where Newsboys May Get Tickets For Field Day

NEWSBOYS who sell BOSTON AMERICANS may secure their tickets for the BOSTON AMERICAN newsboys' field day, to be held next Saturday, July 4, at Caledonian Grove, by applying to Nathan Sodekson, treasurer of the union, at the BOSTON AMERICAN branch office, No. 264 Washington street, between 11 a. m. and 4:30 p. m.

Newsboys desiring to compete in the athletic events must leave their names, together with the names of the event or events in which they wish to compete, with Treasurer Sodekson, at the same place, before 4 p. m., July 3.

AFFIRM FINE OF $5,000,000

CARACAS, Venezuela, July 3.—A fine of $5,000,000 imposed upon the New York & Bermudez Asphalt Company by the Court of the First Instance has been affirmed by the Court of Cassation. The company was found guilty of having given aid to the Matos revolutionists against President Castro.

EXPECT 30,000 AT CLAN-NA-GAEL GAMES

Thirty thousand persons are expected to-morrow at the Clan-na-Gael field day at Oak Island Grove. American and Irish champions will compete for prizes in the various athletic events. Bobbie Baker and Louis F. Guertin will compete for the world's championship for broad and high jumps. Tom Williams, Dan Kennealy and John J. Moore, Irish champion, are entered for the five-mile run. Five Massachusetts military companies will compete for prizes. John Devoy, editor of the New York Gaelic American, will be orator of the day.

To Friends of the Independence Party

THE birth and progress of the Independence Party marks one of the greatest popular uprisings that the politics of the Republic has ever known.

The Independence Party grows naturally and logically out of the Municipal Ownership League and its vigorous successor, the Independence League. It is altogether less than four years old.

Within its brief but phenomenal life it has, within the judgment of all thinking men, carried the city of New York, the metropolis of the country, under the leadership of William Randolph Hearst.

Under the Gubernatorial candidacy of Thomas L. Hisgen it has outvoted the Democratic party in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. It has swept the great city of Chicago and elected Dunne as Mayor in a great campaign.

As its candidate, William Randolph Hearst polled more votes in the State of New York outside of the city than any Democrat has polled in twenty years, and was only defeated by the treason and the knife of McCarren in Brooklyn and Tammany in New York.

It is growing now with marvelous vigor in the East, in the middle States and in the South, and is the party of the people and the party of the future.

The great purpose of the Independence Party is to restore the power of government to the people and make their will supreme in the primaries, in the elections and in the control of public officials after they have been elected.

The second purpose of the Independence Party is to destroy the power of special interests by destroying their principal weapon, the corruption fund.

The third purpose of the party is to correct some of the obvious financial and economic evils of the day.

The fourth object is to frame certain lines of great constructive legislation in the interests of all the people.

To these ends the Independence Party seeks to bring under one banner all the real producers of wealth—the farmer, the workingman and the non-privilege-seeking business man—and place the government in their control.

All citizens, therefore, who believe in the desirability of accomplishing these great ends of government are requested to fill out the accompanying blank, and mail to the address of the New England headquarters, given below.

I am in sympathy with the spirit and purpose of the Independence Party, and in order that I may effectively co-operate with its organized friends desire to have its literature sent to the address attached.

ORMSBY AND WIFE BATTLE FOR BABY BOY

Mother Spends Night with Son in Chardon Street Home, Then Sees Her Lawyer.

JUDGE CONTINUES CASE

George F. Ormsby of Washington, D. C., and his slender, attractive wife, who has divorced him, are to-day preparing to battle in the United States Court next Monday morning for the possession of their golden-haired boy, Edmund, whom the father is charged with kidnapping.

Ever since the mother of baby Edmund came here last night she has spent every spare moment with her boy in the Chardon Street Home. But to-day she was compelled to think of her battle with the determined man who had been her husband—the father of her boy.

"I am worn out with the worry of the past few days," said Mrs. Ormsby to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day. "My journey to Boston has made me very tired. I will not say much right now, but I will admit that I am confident that my right to my baby will be legally established and that it will come out all right in the end."

Spends Night With Boy.

Pale-faced, anxious-eyed, Mrs. Ormsby was escorted to-day to the office of her attorney, John D. McLoughlin, in the Tremont Building, by Inspector Cleavey. She had spent the night with her baby in the Chardon street home, and was made the welcome guest of Miss White, the matron at that institution. She arrived in Boston late yesterday afternoon, on the verge of collapse with worry and the effects of her long, hurried trip.

Meantime another part of the desperate battle between mother and father was being enacted in the office of United States Commissioner Hayes when George F. Ormsby appeared to answer to the charge of unlawfully taking his son out of the jurisdiction of the courts of the District of Columbia.

His attorney, Arthur T. Johnson, asked for a secured continuance until next Wednesday on the ground that he wanted to get more evidence for his client from Washington. Assistant United States District Attorney J. Bernard Ferber readily consented.

Habeas Corpus Proceeding.

This makes the father's battle for the possession of little Edmund the next move. It will come up in the United States Circuit Court on Monday when Attorney Johnson will try to prove that the United States Marshal is illegally detaining the child from the father at the Chardon street home.

In the meantime, the little innocent boy, the cause of the struggle between husband and wife, is happy in the home where he has every attention and where his mamma is permitted to be with him constantly.

Mr. Ormsby says that her divorce from her husband was perfectly legal and that he did not oppose it. She declares that she was made the legal custodian of the little one, while the father says that he was given the guardianship of the little one.

CAMBRIDGE COACH SAYS THERE'LL BE NO RACE

HENLEY, July 3.—The latest efforts to bring about a race between crews representing Harvard University and Cambridge, England, after the Olympic regatta have met a fate similar to all previous efforts to this end, namely, failure. Mr. Stuart, the Cambridge coach, without whom the Cambridge crew will not row, is strongly opposed to making any arrangement which would necessitate keeping the crew in training a day longer than they will have to train for the Olympic races.

Mr. Stuart said to-day that after the Olympic contest his crew will have had enough racing for one year. Most of the members of the Cambridge crew are willing to row Harvard over the Olympic course at Henley the day after the Olympic races, but the opposition of Mr. Stuart probably will put an end to the negotiations.

The receipt of a cablegram yesterday by Robert F. Herrick, chairman of the graduate rowing committee at Harvard, from Rudolph C. Lehmann, the English rowing coach, ended all hopes of a trip to England by the Crimson crew. Mr. Lehmann said:

"Cambridge, having to row in Olympic regatta, is regretfully compelled to decline further race this season."

It has been decided, however, to send Coach James Wray to England to study the methods of the crews competing in the Olympic regatta and other races this Summer.

COLLINS PICKED TO BEAT CHAMP M'LEAN

The first appearance of Elmer Collins in this country, racing the champion of America, is a stellar holiday card at the Revere Beach Track, to-morrow afternoon. This pair of wonderful pace followers are to meet in three heats at fifteen, ten and five miles, which means that high speed will be maintained from the crack of the pistol in every heat, as the distance is just right for it.

MacLean has failed yet to find anybody to take his measure, but waived a point in Collins's favor by agreeing to meet him at distances which are to Collins's liking, as he is chuck full of speed and can beat anybody when it comes to sticking to a motor going like an express.

Collins's home town, Lynn, will turn out in big numbers, as he is the one big card that the Shoe City has and is the only rider who ever went abroad from that district. His success in France has been remarkable and shows that he is riding faster than last Summer, when he was beating them all at the Beach track.

His strong riding a year ago won him a big slice of popularity, and he is due to get a reception when he appears on the track for the first time since his notable winnings abroad.

It should be simple riding for Collins to follow the eight-horsepower motors, when he has faced danger behind the bigger machines across the water, and going anywhere near his best form should be the favorite over MacLean.

MacLean has been having some great luck in winning so far this season, getting Moran by narrow margins, but Collins always had his share of things breaking right for him, and MacLean will have nothing on him in that direction.

Another good race is the ten mile three-cornered affair between Tom Connolly, Drobeck and Helander. Connolly wants to get even with Drobeck for beating him the last time they met and will be prepared to show some speeding behind the motors at which all displayed marked proficiency, considering the short time they have taken up the game.

A score of amateurs will come out for the half mile handicap and the two-mile miss-and-out races.

KERRYMEN DAY AT RUGBY PARK

Arrangements have just been completed for the second annual field day and Irish Pattern of the Kerrymen's Association which is to be held on Saturday, July Fourth, from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m., at Rugby Park, Oakland street, Mattapan, Dorchester. A fine list of games has been arranged together with a lengthy programme of Irish music, dancing and singing. The games include three Gaelic football games, a baseball and football game between the single and marriedmen, 100-yard dash, running high and broad jump, three standing jumps, one-mile run, a special three-mile run, sack race, three-legged race, fat men's race, tug of war, boys' and girls' races (under fifteen years).

In the evening there will be held the first Irish Country Dance ever attempted in America. Every man and woman present will take part in this spectacular dance at the same time. Music will be furnished by twenty-five pipers and fiddlers under the direction of Professor Jeremiah J. Foley, the Irish dancing master, and Partick Toohey, the celebrated Irish piper of New York.

WILL RACE FOR SKATE CHAMP

Charles Williams, the South End roller skater, who has just returned from Coney Island with the 10,000 meter cup won June 20, has met with a sharp sweeping challenge from his old rival, Clarence Hamilton, now at the Wonderland skating rink, to any sort of a contest, for any distance, for any kind of a prize. Williams defeated Hamilton in a contest in the Park Square rink last December, and ever since that time Hamilton has been anxious to again test speed and endurance with Williams. Hamilton, who can be addressed at Wonderland, declares that if he doesn't hear from Williams he will claim the championship and stand ready at all times to defend the title.

After a short stay at that point they will proceed to Cape Porpoise and on Tuesday will go to Portland. KEWER JUMPS OVER FIVE PLAYERS IN BIG CONTEST

Kewer of Mechanic Arts High has taken the biggest jump in the last returns in the BOSTON AMERICAN Baseball Contest for the most popular professional and amateur player, having advanced in the standing over five competitors, and is right in the position where a few coupons added will make a big difference.

McDonald of the Hecla A. A. has gone up into third position over Broders of the Roger Wolcott A. A., while Hoernle of Dorchester High and Elcock of Boston Latin have each moved up one place in the rating.

For the professionals the contest is red hot between "Old Cy" Young and McConnell for first position, the former only leading by a few more than two hundred votes. The standing:

2-YEAR COLT IS VALUED AT $50,000

NEW YORK, July 1.—Most horse owners just now are busily engaged trying to sell their racers for a song. But John E. Madden is not one of them. He is so hopeful of the future of the turf that he holds his best horses at high figures. Many turfmen would have jumped at an offer of $40,000 for Fayette, but he refused it and held out for $50,000.

Madden maintains that Fayette is worth every cent of $50,000, and points to the many rich engagements to substantiate his claim.

"Why, that fellow will more than win that amount this year," declared Madden on Saturday, and as he is eligible for the Epsom derby, worth $35,000, and the Grand Prix de Paris, of $70,000, in 1909, I would be foolish to part with him for less."

Paul J. Rainey was the man who offered $40,000 for Fayette just before the Great Trial Stake race was run. Madden would not listen to the proposition.

For once in his career on the turf Rainey was lucky. He did not purchase Fayette, and when the latter's stable mate, Sir Martin, beat him out the friends of the young millionaire congratulated him because he had not bought the son of Saratoga Belle.

That Fayette is the best two-year-old in training all trainers agree. He was a victim of bad racing luck last Saturday, and should have beaten Sir Martin.

His fine size and conformation insure his owner that he will carry stake weights to the end of his career. As he has great speed, there is no question that he will win the majority of the rich turf "classics" before he is shipped to England in the Fall.

CANDY LACHANCE FOR LYNN TEAM

Hub fans who still maintain that Candy Lachance, the old Boston American first baseman, was the best ever may have a chance to see the veteran in action as the Lynn team of the New England League is after him to play first base and manage the nine. Lachance, since his Eastern League experience has been playing independent ball down in his home State, Connecticut.

Lynn also expects to get pitcher Hartman of the Red Sox as soon as Manager McGuire puts through a deal for a western player, and Gardner, the University of Vermont infielder, is another to be put on the Shoe City payroll when Lord, the regular, gets back at third base on the Red Sox.

BIG CROWD AT COMBINATION TO SEE RACES

MEDFORD, July 3.—Combination Park threw its gates open this afternoon for the initial race meeting of the season in New England. Three races were on the card, the 2:25 trot for $600, 2:21 pace for $300 and the 2:29 pace, an event of half-mile heats. About 4,000 persons were present.

Among the trotters in the 2:25 class was Hawkins, the gelding which, when a four-year-old, stepped a trial in 2:13¼. Since then he has been off, but "Long Shot" Cox has him in pretty fair shape this year; Queensland, the Bingen mare from Readville that has been doing good work for Henry Titer in her preparation; Gloria Rex, one of the Lynn Driving Club horses with a rare turn of speed; Shimosa, another by Bingen, and has been miles in 2:20, etc.

For the 2:21 pace Mardel has been in special training to carry off the bulk end of the money. He is a very fast gelding for a half, and his critics may have a big surprise in store by the way he will march off a race of mile heats. Ashland Bett, Charley King, Rowena, Lady Band and the others entered are so well known to the public that nothing need be remarked of their ability.

It is the same in the 2:29 pace, as from Helgamite through the list each has been prominent in local racing circles. The entries:

2:25 trot, purse $600:

Harry Bingen,	Gloria Rex,
Joe Dillon,	Lea Bertha,
Helvetia,	Shimosa,
Hawkins,	Queensland,
Origen,	Williametta.

2:21 pace, purse $300:

Mardel,	Harry St. Croix,
Joe King,	Rowena,
Prince Alfonda,	Charles King,
Ashland Bett,	Chester Roy.
Lady Band,

2:29 pace, half-mile heats:

Kitty S,	Crispin,
Mabel C,	Stamford,
Helgamite.	Casco Simmons.

DORCHESTERS OMIT RACING

The regular weekly matinee of the Dorchester Driving Club on the Franklin Field speedway will be omitted to-morrow. Several of the club's horse are entered in other events of the day. The regular weekly racing will, however, be resumed on the following Saturday.

The Dorchester Club is trying to arrange a series of intercity matches with other clubs in Boston and vicinity. The club has sent invitations to the Fellsway Driving Club of Somerville, the Quannapowitt Driving Club of Wakefield, the Brockton Driving Club of Brockton, the Metropolitan Driving Club of Boston and the Old Colony Driving Club of South Braintree. The clubs are invited to participate in racing on the Franklin Field speedway and return matches are promised on the speedways or tracks of the other clubs.

GANS READY FOR BOUT WITH DANE

BY W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 3.—How to take advantage of every ounce permitted by the articles and at the same time protect forfeits is the problem that confronts Joe Gans and Battling Nelson.

They have signed to weigh in at the ringside, which means that each man must be ready to step to the centre soon after passing the master of the scales. Were an afternoon weighing called for, neither man would mind being a pound or so under the scale. He could take it on again with his steak or beef tea, and for that matter gain a pound or two before being required to answer the gong. In this particular instance there is no chance for taking nourishment or building up short weight, and as the two fighters have plenty of respect for each other's right talents, they are aiming to be as big as possible without imperilling the money in the hands of the stakeholder.

Gans weighed 133¾ to-day, and Nelson weighed the same. Gans took a run on the road this morning, and in the afternoon took an extra rub from his handlers. Nelson did road work and sparred lightly after lunch. Each man is trying to make weight, as every sared and fibre counts, and if the scales are nicely balanced it will be found that neither is a third of a pound lighter than the notch named in their agreement.

There is no doubt both men have made the weight easily. Gans, who had a drawn and dried-out appearance in the ring at Goldfield, has not suffered any hardships during his present training. His skin is oily looking and he carries himself like a man whose strength is intact.

HECLAS PLAY UNIONS.

A game that is attracting a great deal of attention and one which will go a great way toward deciding the nineteen-year-old championship of Greater Boston, will be played on Franklin Field to-morrow morning between the crack Hecla A. C. and the strong North End Unions. Both teams are out to win, and as they are bitter rivals and this their first meeting, a game well worth seeing is expected.

LIFEBOAT CREWS RACE.

The following entries have been received for the U. S. volunteer life saving six-oared barge race at North End Park to-morrow at 11 a. m.: West Ends, Captain Donovan; North End, No. 1, Captain John O'Connell; North End, No. 2, Captain Thomas Porter; North End, No. 3, Captain N. Furlong; Charlesbank crew, Captain Gabriel Farrell. D. F. O'Connell will act as starter, W. C. Donovan as judge, and T. J. Callahan as judge at turn.

BOYS IN LONG WALK.

The Y. M. H. A. Jrs., will start from Broadway extension to-night at 7 o'clock on their second walk to Concord, a distance of twenty-five miles, which they expect to reach by midnight. Ten boys will start.

MAINE LEAGUE RESULTS.

At Portland—Portland, 7; Bangor, 6 (10 innings).
At Lewiston—Lewiston-Pine Tree—rain.

A Few Things to Remember When Buying Land:

REMEMBER

That future improvements are what will make your land increase over the present price—what you pay today for it ought to be much lower than what you can get for it in a year or two. Buy land that will improve in value quickly. You can't afford to wait too long for your profit.

Celebrate Independence Day by Joining the Independence Party

In another column of the AMERICAN to-day will be found an address to American citizens throughout the country who are of independent mind and conviction and are ready to break away from the traditions and platitudes of the old and moribund party organizations, whose usefulness is past and whose disintegration and decay are every year becoming more pronounced.

The growth of the Independence Party has been one of the remarkable things of this generation of American politics. Developed out of the Municipal League in the city politics of New York and Boston and Chicago, and from the later developments and successes of the Independence League in one-half dozen of the great States of the republic, the Independence Party has registered a growth whose vitality and effectiveness are without a parallel in the history of political organizations in this country.

The growth of a new political party has always been slow because of the difficulty of disseminating its doctrines, its platform and its mission, and as well because it has been difficult to get into communication with those who entertain like political opinions upon the public questions of the day.

In very considerable measure this difficulty has been lessened by the publicity afforded by the great series of daily newspapers which have given themselves to the advocacy of the principles set forth in the declaration of the Independence Party at Chicago.

One way, however, in which a party can grow rapidly and coherently toward its destined end of success and usefulness is by the knowledge of its friends and through organization in a co-operative effort.

To this end the Independence Party coupon is published in this and other daily and weekly newspapers that are the advocates of its principles, and to the sentiments and suggestions of this general appeal a frank and immediate answer is requested from the friends of independent political thought and action throughout the country.

There comes to the AMERICAN from the headquarters of the Independence Party in Chicago the statement that the coupons already published are bringing in responses in great numbers from all over the country. The general headquarters at No. 208 Security Building, Chicago, are fairly flooded with the responses of citizens tired of the empty platitudes and the recurring protestations never fulfilled by the older parties of the republic.

There is everything in the present condition of the Independence Party to fill its already declared followers with satisfaction and abundant confidence for the future.

And there is everything in its principles and in its constantly swelling numbers to inspire all men of independent political courage and conviction to declare themselves promptly and unhesitatingly in co-operation with this new and vital organization, carefully founded upon the necessities and duties of the day in which we live, and pitched in its motive to the restoration of government to the people, to the purification of the ballot and to the establishment of just and equal rights to all people of America.

The AMERICAN most cordially invites the friends of the Independence Party and those who wish it well to read the appeal published today and to make their responses promptly to the national headquarters before the assembling of the first national convention of the Independence Party in the city of Chicago on the 27th day of July.

The London Times Is Harmsworth's

Perhaps the Old "Thunderer" Will Stop Its Squeaking, and Thunder Once More

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

Alfred Harmsworth—his fancy name is Lord Northcliffe—turns up serenely as the owner of the London Times. The Times is an interesting old relic; it reminds you of one of those wide-mouthed blunderbusses that used to do good work, but that have only been curiosities of late. If Harmsworth wants the Times, and evidently he does, we congratulate him on getting it. We congratulate the Times, anyhow, on being got by Harmsworth. We are inclined to think that it will act now like an old watch with a new mainspring in it, and show energy, anyhow, even if it doesn't go regularly.

Some solemn English people—like the Times, closely related to the dodo—are afraid that Harmsworth with his modern ideas will spoil a "grand, ancient, good institution." They needn't worry. The Times has been spoiling itself as fast as it could, with its shameful Parnell libels and other unworthy achievements.

It is lucky to become the property of a man who knows something about newspaper work, something about modern conditions, and who will have no other desire than to restore the Times to its former greatness.

What does a newspaper need, after all? It needs A MAN BACK OF IT, and Harmsworth is a man able, self-made, energetic, and growing. He will make the Times feel and act like an old-fashioned, four-legged piano after a modern phonograph has been stuffed into its insides.

The Times will have to talk and sing and make a noise now. Men interested in newspaper making will be glad of that. It's a pity, however, that Harmsworth is wasting his time and his energy in England, where he can't do anything better in the end than become a duke, buy a few extra country seats that he doesn't need, and, from a distance of three thousand miles, watch this REAL country grow.

If Harmsworth were wise, he would come over here, become naturalized, buy one of our journalistic dodos, put life into it, and get into a movement really worth while.

Anyhow, it is a comfort to have him appear as the Times's owner, if only because of the cackling and groaning and gouty creaking of indignant old fogies that must follow.

Pointers on Keeping Cool

By C. B. Quincy

One of the best methods of keeping cool is to become an Arctic explorer. Not all of us, however, can collect enough money to pursue this object.

A way that is within the reach of all is to be accidentally locked in a refrigerator car going through to Omaha. The only objection to this is Omaha.

The cooler is patronized to some extent, but is not entirely respectable.

Another excellent plan to keep cool, even frigid, is to engage in organized charity.

But for the ordinary citizen who can follow none of these methods a few simple rules are necessary:

Wrap the neck in ice cream before dressing.

Ice the ink before signing checks.

If you begin to feel the heat excessive at any time, leave your office or store and stand for ten minutes in a snow storm.

If this does not suffice, ask a friend to lend you $10 and enjoy a frost.

Carry a piece of ice in each pocket.

For a New Humanity

A Woman's Large Mind Plans a Great Boon to Mothers and to Future Generations

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

AT last a cherished ideal long carried in mind and often exploited in this column of what might be done to better the world has taken material form through the larger mind and more practical methods of another woman.

A New York woman has sent a most interesting prospectus of a new association. Here are some of its features:

"The aim of the association is to teach infant science, to assist young mothers to cope with their sudden responsibilities and furnish them with the knowledge they require.

"The method of the association will be to maintain an academy for the instruction of young mothers in all that pertains to the care of infants, to guide and help them and relieve their cares.

"The academy will be under the direct supervision of a medical director and an advisory board composed of those physicians who make infant life a specialty.

"It is requested that the physician attending a maternity case recommend that each new-born child be registered at the academy and secure its advantages.

Disinct Advantages

"The advantages are a staff of nurses under the immediate direction of the medical director, who will call on the mother at regular intervals and give her the advice and course of instruction prescribed by the medical advisory board, investigate the progress of the infant and report its condition to the medical director, handing in, with the report of the instructor or nurse, the chart the mother will be trained to keep.

"The advantage to the physician introducing the case is that he can inspect daily at the academy the reports made in his cases, and if they are unsatisfactory to him or the house staff the correct course to follow can at once be sent to the mother, or the doctor can call on the mother. This will enable the doctor to save making a large number of calls a day by making one call a day at the academy, and will assist him by keeping a correct record of his cases.

"The physician's fees will in all cases be paid by the academy.

"The pre-natal course.—The academy will provide a pre-natal course of instruction. Attention to pre-natal conditions is a most important factor and aid to the birth of healthy children.

Maintained by Fees

"The charge for services—The yearly fee for patients has not been finally decided upon, but it will be in the neighborhood of $8.33 a month, or at the rate of $100 per annum. The academy does not, of course, provide for serious illness, and the family physician would, of course, make his usual charges and attendance in all such cases.

"The Charity Department.—The association and its academy will be self-supporting, but for the poorer classes a free department and service will be ma tained.

"The association has secured hearty endorsement of many lead members of the medical profession New York city, as well as the endo ment and co-operation of a great m ladies and gentlemen who are deeply terested in making it a success, an now feels confident that it will have assistance and endorsement of all people in its too-long-needed ur ing."

Here is a chance for good wor large fortunes to make their ow immortal and to do more good to ity than all the libraries, churches and hospitals of the lan bined can ever accomplish.

Means a New Humanity

The pre-natal feature of this ass tion is a long step forward, and me the foundation for a new humanity.

Were women awakened to the po they possess to help their unborn c dren, physically, mentally and mora to the best life has to offer, it would quire but two generations to bring millennium.

This association ought to be pla upon a firm financial basis, and it ou to be done at once.

There are hundreds of millionaires New York city alone whose names h never been seen in print. Let some these wealthy people come forward and endow the association, and make an institution which shall bestow bl ings upon mothers and children fo time.
